Afterwards, by the time I would forget about it, Father would say

Terminally.

he talked about my future bride.

He's been 500 years, and yet, he has never seen the dragon who was to be his wife.

One day, when he felt especially nervous due to his father's unreliable predictions and convincing actions...

he found a letter his father left before he left, telling when he was choosing his date before going out to work.

Although the promise was forcefully made
I write this letter thinking that it is about time. As your daughter and my son's age for marriage matches, I can't hinder

Father has already finished writing the letter and has sent it.. Young Soo Lee said he would never go meet her, but unable to break his father's will, he agreed to go to the matchmaking.

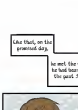
Like that, on the promised day, he met the woman that he had heard about for the past 300 years.



She could've been offended with this forced marriage, yet she smiled for me.

She was very kind towards me.

She was so kind as to talk of marriage first.

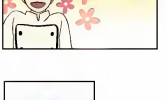
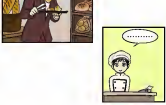
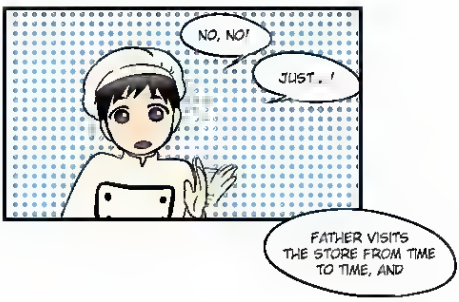
Young Soo Lee, who has never thought highly of himself, had little confidence after reading his father's letter, so he was very moved by her words.

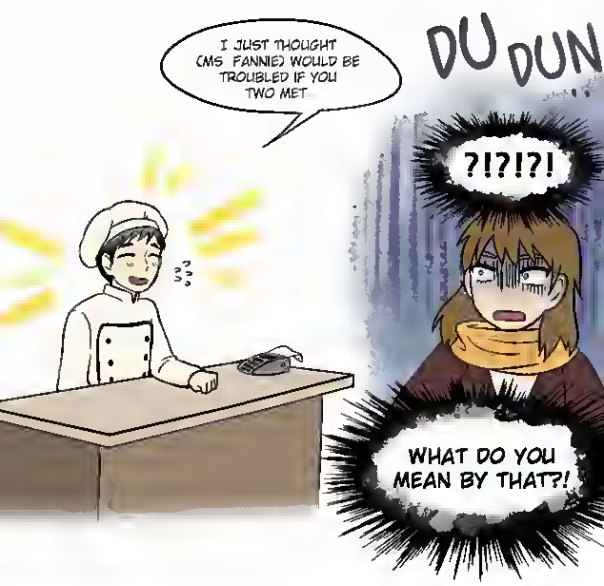
However, he was not shameless enough as to accept her offer right away.

The protestant himself is not given her any pressure.









Young Soo Lee's love story is still distant and harsh.

36#. The End

+) Last week's chapter 35 bonus

LEND ME THAT BURUSTA THAT WE USED TO ROAST MEAT LAST TIME! AND THAT CANOPY-LIKE THING TOO .
These are Galbi and newly made Kimchi, so take these first.
T/N Burusta = Korean slang for stove

AH, ARE YOU HAVING A NEIGHBORHOOD WOMEN'S MEETING ON THE ROOFTOP AGAIN?
YEAH! I LIVE FOR THAT NOWADAYS
By the way, it's not "Burusta" it's "stove."
